Project

Healthcare System With Emergency Alarm Based on Android-

The "Emergency Alarm System" project is an Android mobile application that provides an alarm system in case of emergencies. The front-end of the app is built using XML, while the back-end is built using Java and Kotlin. The application is designed to allow users to trigger an alarm and send a distress signal to emergency contacts when they are in danger. The app may also include features such as location tracking and calling emergency services. Overall, this project aims to provide a tool that can help individuals feel safer and more secure during emergency situations.
